Dear Mr

Freedom of Information request - RF12007000951 - BBC website stats

Thank you for your request under the Freedom of Information Act ('the Act') dated 1st November 2007 seeking information about bbc.co.uk server log information. The reference number for your request is RF12007000951.

You requested the following information:

"Following on from Ashley Highfields claim that only 400-600 linux users visit the BBC website, I would like to request the webstats for the BBC website for the past 12 months, either in raw data form, or post-processed into page impressions by browser and by host OS."

With regards to your request above please see attached report. Please note the following when reviewing the report provided:

The BBC currently utilises certain reporting systems to collate data relating to the usage of BBC websites. When a web site is visited, the browser sends information in a "User Agent" string to the servers hosting the web pages. This string contains browser, platforms and the operating system details such as the name and any versions. Analytics systems use the user agent from the server log files to identify the volumes of web traffic per browser or platform or operating system or a combination of all.

User Agent strings can vary in format from browser to browser, platform to platform. Once the user agent string has been identified, there is no set standard for extracting the browser and platform information from the user agent and as such methodologies can vary between suppliers.

INVESTOR IN PEOPLE

As new browser/platform/operating systems are released, the user agent identification methodology becomes out of date. In these cases, these browsers/platforms will end up as "unclassified" as a general list in reporting, resulting in an incomplete analysis.

Please note that we have only provided the data for the first ten months of 2007 rather than the full twelve months requested as some of the data in November and December 2006 is known to be incomplete.

Work is currently underway to reduce the number of unclassified user agents. As of 2 November 2007, our key supplier of analytics reporting has updated their user agent analysis to immediately identify all Linux platforms.

We hope you find this information useful.

Appeal Rights

If you are not satisfied with our response you have the right to an internal review by a BBC senior manager. Please contact us at the address above, explaining what you would like us to review and including your reference number. If you are not satisfied with the internal review, you can appeal to the Information Commissioner. The contact details are: Information Commissioner's Office, Wycliffe House, Water Lane, Wilmslow, Cheshire, SK9 5AF, telephone 01625 545 700 or see www.informationcommissioner.gov.uk

Yours sincerely,

T Samarasinghe
